

C'mon the reds!

- Jackie: It's the World Cup so for this week's podcasts.inenglish.com we're talking about football.
- Richard: Yes, yes, but not the game, we're talking about the football kit, the clothes.
- Jackie: Red is a very popular colour.
- Richard: Yes, Spain are all in red. They have red shirts, red shorts and red socks.
- Jackie: With yellow numbers.
- Richard: Yes, Wales have red shirts, red shorts and red socks.
- Jackie: With white numbers.
- Richard: Yes, and also Switzerland, and Denmark as well. It's a strong colour.
- Jackie: Yeah because South Korea are also all in red, but... but they have black numbers.
- Richard: Another colour that's very popular is all white.
- Jackie: Yes, Ghana have an all white kit, don't they. Other teams have all one colour too.
- Richard: Yes, blue obviously. The USA are all in blue...
- Jackie: No Italy this time.
- Richard: No, no and of course the Netherlands, they're all orange: orange shirt, orange shorts and orange socks. Very nice.
- Jackie: I think the countries that have three colours are nicer. Both Brazil and Australia have yellow shirts, but Brazil have blue shorts and white socks...
- Richard: Yes, but Australia have green shorts with white socks. Also Cameroon and Mexico both have green shirts.
- Jackie: Yeah, Cameroon have red shorts and yellow socks but Mexico have white shorts and red socks.
- Richard: Mmm. but no interesting patterns really. I mean Argentina have of course blue and white stripes which I really like.
- Jackie: Yeah and Germany has one black stripe on the front of the... of the white shirt.
- Richard: And of course Croatia, they have lots of small, red squares. That's very exciting.
- Jackie: Because their flag is exciting. The English flag is red and white but the English kit is very boring, white with some blue.
- Richard: Yes and France, they have red, white and blue just like their flag. I like that as well.
- Jackie: The Portuguese kit has a diagonal line across the front and back in red and green. Quite modern. So, Richard, your favourite please.
- Richard: For me it's got to be the Brazilian team.
- Jackie: Oh really? Because?
- Richard: The yellow and the blue look great together.
- Jackie: And so Jackie, what about you?
- Richard: The Cameroon team. I just think they are so colourful, so exciting and lots of fun.
